NEW KENT

The 50-year-old bail bondsman who was charged last week with threatening judges and a magistrate was arraigned Wednesday in New Kent County General District Court.

Vincent D. Rera, of the 8800 block of Old River Road in New Kent County, was arrested in James City County Jan. 26 and charged with two felony counts of making threats of death or bodily injury to a person, according to the Virginia State Police. Rera was also charged with one misdemeanor count of stalking.

The charges stem from a complaint filed by the Department of Judicial Services of the Supreme Court of Virginia. The complaint alleged that Rera stalked and made death threats to court officials, which included judges and a magistrate. The incidents are said to have occurred between December 2011 and January 2012.

Rera is scheduled to appear in court for a preliminary hearing on Feb. 21. He will be represented by John Jones, a court appointed attorney.
